Final Deadline: Friday, March 20, 11:59 p.m. ET

Calling all public relations pros from the Triangle to the Coast!

It's time to compete for top honors in the North Carolina Public Relations Society of America's (NCPRSA) 2020 InSpire Awards!

On behalf of the NCPRSA Board of Directors, I'm thrilled to announce this year's call for entries and invite you all to enter.

The InSpire Awards honor our region's most successful and innovative communications programs from the past year. Communications professionals from agencies, corporate shops, nonprofits, associations and government offices, as well as solo practitioners across our area produced outstanding work and achieved fantastic results throughout 2019. NOW is the time to compete for our profession's top honors and let your work shine!

We model our awards program on PRSA's Silver and Bronze Anvil Awards, which makes it even easier to enter both. With subcategories for Silver and Bronze Awards, there's an award opportunity for every budget, project, and team.

NCPRSA has partnered with the Cincinnati Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America, which will judge our entries this year. When the judging is complete and winners selected, we invite you to celebrate with us at the 2020 InSpire Awards gala event in May. Look for details and your invitation soon.

The InSpire Awards gives you a chance to shine.

Enter today for the chance to get the recognition your hard work deserves. If you have any questions, contact InSpire Award Co-Chair Kim Strazisar – 919-244-715 or kimstrazisar@gmail.com.

Thank you and good luck!

Connie Helmlinger
2020 President
NCPRSA
